INTRODUCTION

Hi, my name is Creerloshin. I am a writer for a story called "The Heart to Seek". I never foreseen in my childhood that I would become a writer, yet here I am, penning an untold true love story. Today, on 14th April 2024, marks the significant day when my novel is revealed to the world. This is the story of me searching for a soulmate, encountering various souls who shaped me as a person. A journey of me seeking true love on a voyage of life with a written destiny to rewrite my fate. Should I patiently wait for true love, or actively search for it? Well, uncountable doubts flooded my mind. I seek answers in life for what I believe in. By facing the world, was my faith worthwhile all along? My love life began to unfold at age thirteen while I was still schooling. Here is a momentary touch of me, before exploring my love life journey. As an extrovert, I love adventure. I think a million times before taking action, but not after. I have a strong sense of patience, sincerity, loyalty, and respect, and the most crucial value I learnt to embrace was to never give up on this belief – The tender heart of mine will only be revealed to the person I have placed priceless faith on. Earning my trust to reveal a genuine heart, regardless of the nature of the soul, is important. I am a risk-taker in life, especially for the things that matter most. I come from the nation of Dattebayo, and Anbu was the state where I was born. Named by the Japanese, Dattebayo pays tribute to the native's inspiring spirit. The nation was invaded by the Japanese and achieved independence on 24th August 1992. In a twist of fate, I was born on the day of my nation's independence and parents named me Creerloshin. "Creer" means 'to believe' in Spanish, the language which my parents are fond of. The inspiration for my name originated from how my homeland achieved independence through the persistent fight for righteousness, never surrendering the land until the last breath. My parents named me Creerloshin to remind me that life begins with the foundational value of never abandoning what I seek or do. Love transcends boundaries, making my story inclusive and not confined to any specific religion. I will take you on a ride to explore my life journey of love, kindness, respect and unwavering faith, from the past to today. As someone who wholeheartedly believes in true love, I extend this novel as a canvas for your own love story, waiting to be shared with the world. Welcome to discover the true love of mine.
